

ELLE DECORATION

moodboard

4 French interior designer Dorothée Meilichzon riffed on the laid-back bohemian attitude found on the island of Ibiza for her renovation of the Montesol Experimental Ibiza hotel. Inside, shell motifs can be spotted at every turn. One of the most pleasing is the shell-embossed lime plaster on the bedroom walls, which has been combined with pastel, ice-cream-shop colours in a playful nod to seaside tropes (chzon.com).

5 An antique scalloped basin and its skirt (which is equally frilly) give this powder room in The 1818 Collective's showroom a uniquely quaint feel, though this is offset by Clé Tile's wavy flooring. The overall look has a coastal feel without any note of pastiche (the1818collective.com).

6 An arched relief frames the dining area in this split-level loft by French interior-design practice Heju Studio, but it's the inclusion of a large pendant light, its form reminiscent of a giant fan shell, that makes this space memorable. It's an oversized, almost architectural take on this natural source of inspiration (heju.fr).
